NATIONAL GOVERNMENT

BACKGROUND

The T̂silhqot'in Nation has always practiced our right to self-government. As part of this journey, the T̂silhqot'in Nation has been working since 2020 to reclaim child and family services. This work is called "T̂silhqot'in Nidlin" - translating to "we are T̂silhqot'in" - to encompass past, present, and future generations.

The Nidlin Team has been busy working with community members, frontline workers, Leadership, and government partners to develop our Legislation, Service Model, and Jurisdiction agreement. This newsletter provides an update on our engagement and progress to date.

"The work this team is doing is not just for future generations, but it's also work to heal the generations before us. It's needed work."

- Chief Lennon Solomon,
Yunešit'in

ENGAGEMENT HIGHLIGHTS

WHAT WE HEARD FROM COMMUNITY

Legislation

Our legislation is titled T̓silhqot'in ʔEsqax Sutsel Jeniyax. This translates to "T̓silhqot'in children growing up in a good way."

We presented highlights from the draft Legislation during engagements, and Community Members provided feedback including:

- Importance of matriarchs
- Need for a Tribunal to handle disputes
- Need for communities to work together for our children
- Need for power to be shared, not held with one decision-making body.

Emerging Service Model

Our collaborative service model allows us to move services from a central T̓silhqot'in Organization to communities as capacity grows. This will help ensure children do not fall through the cracks.

Community Members provided key feedback about our Service Model:

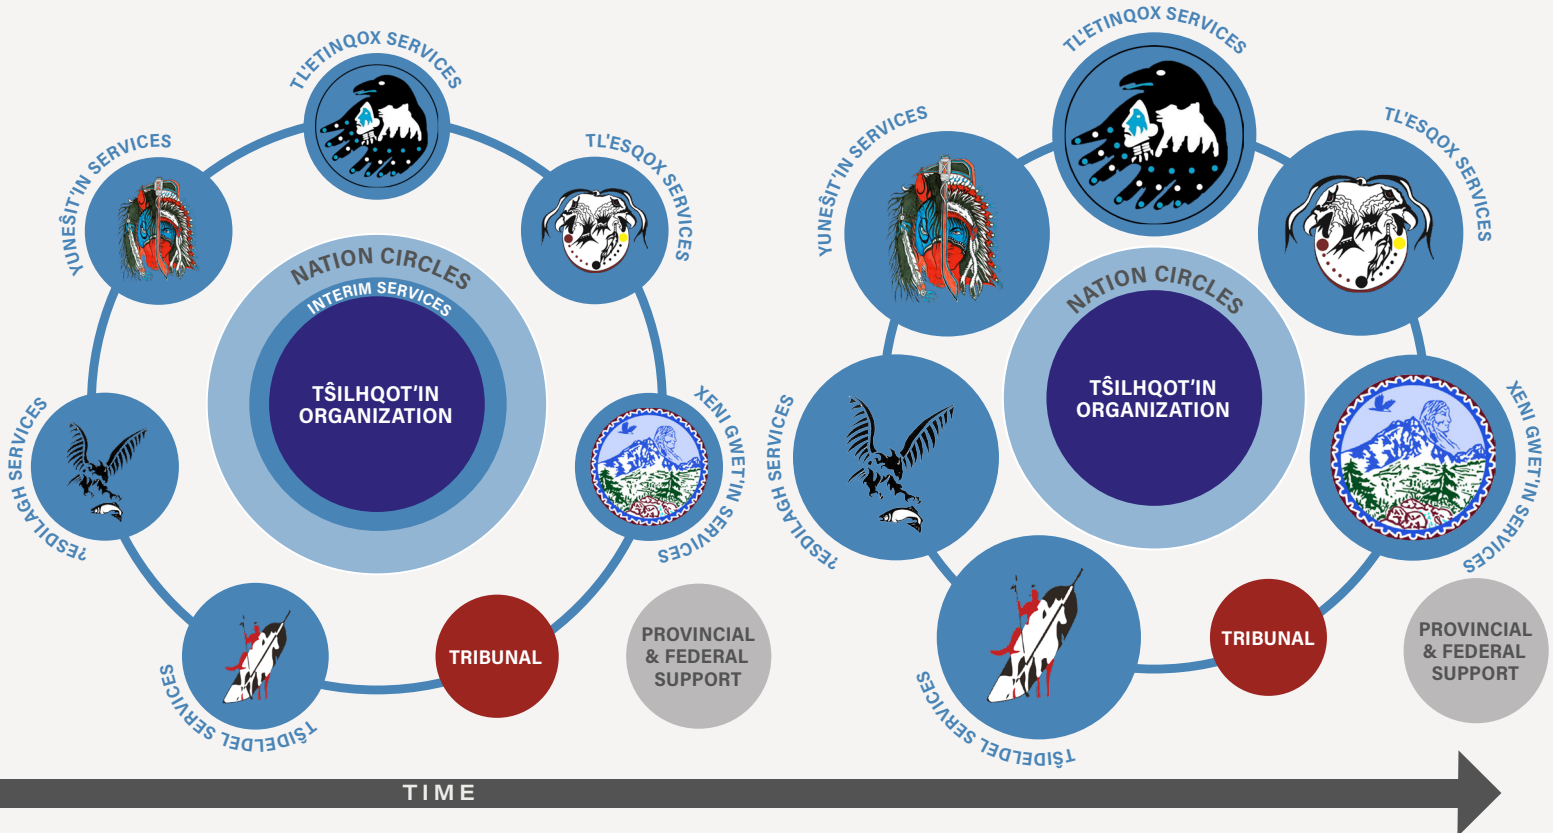

- Supportive of this model that allows us to build tools and capacity in communities
- Importance of working collaboratively to build community ownership of services
- We need to ensure off-reserve children and families are included in our service model.

“ We’re building something better than what the white people made for us. - Community Engagement Participant

“ Without proper tools, [our service model] will fail. - Community Engagement Participant

FRONTLINE WORKERS ENGAGEMENT

On January 16, 2024, frontline workers from Denisiqi Services Society and T̓ilhqot'in communities gathered in Williams Lake to learn about our work towards jurisdiction.

Frontline workers provided valuable feedback, including:

- We need strong coordination, communication, and governance
- We need clear processes and standards to implement our Legislation

They also identified key questions about our Service Model, which are guiding our next steps for transition planning.

[I'm excited for us to] create policy and procedures for our current families and future generations while honoring our past. - Frontline worker

T̓ILHQOT'IN LEADERSHIP FORUM

On February 22, 2024, T̓ilhqot'in Chiefs, Councils, and Women's Council attended a Leadership Forum. Over 55 PEOPLE from ALL 6 COMMUNITIES attended to hear updates and provide direction on child and family jurisdiction.

We're definitely on the right track. The amount of work that's been done on this is a lot more than I had anticipated.

It's been a while since we had Council all together with the Chiefs in one room. It's a pretty powerful room right now.

DR. CINDY BLACKSTOCK KEYNOTE & HONOURING

On February 23, 2024, Frontline workers, Chiefs, Councils, and Women's Council were invited to learn from Dr. Cindy Blackstock, a Gitksan activist for child welfare and Executive Director of the First Nations Child and Family Caring Society of Canada. Dr. Blackstock provided a keynote address, followed by discussion, ceremony, and a shared meal.

The multi-generational strength we have is far stronger than our multi-generational trauma. - Dr. Cindy Blackstock

Ambearrister Honouring

Dr. Blackstock honoured the T̓silhqot'in Nation with an Ambearrister (ambassador + barrister) to witness and support our work towards Child and Family Jurisdiction. The Ambearrister is a friend of Spirit Bear, who witnesses all Canadian Human Rights Tribunal hearings on behalf of Indigenous children.

Our Ambearrister will be present for all discussions related to our Child and Family Jurisdiction.

We will be holding a contest to name our Ambearrister! Watch the TNG Facebook and Instagram pages for more information.

TRANSITIONING TO JURISDICTION

WHERE TWO RIVERS MEET

ʔAtish ʔElhixidlin is a special site within T̕silhqot̕'in Title Lands where the Dasiqox and T̕silhqox rivers meet. With a swift current at the junction, the two different colours of water run alongside each other, gradually mixing to become one.

Our transition to T̕silhqot̕'in Jurisdiction can be imagined like two streams - T̕silhqot̕'in and Provincial Jurisdiction - flowing beside each other and gradually merging to build towards full T̕silhqot̕'in Jurisdiction (see Page 9).

BENEFITS FOR COMMUNITIES

We are strongly advocating to bring positive changes to T̕silhqot̕'in communities through Jurisdiction, including:

- ✓ Requesting funding to get ready for Jurisdiction (training staff, creating policies, etc.)
- ✓ Following guidance from Dechen Ts'edilhtan (T̕silhqot̕'in Law) to improve programs
- ✓ Staying safe from legal risks until we have the tools to protect us
- ✓ Advocating for more funding for prevention services, with new supports for off-reserve families
- ✓ Calling for more resources to create buildings and spaces for services

Denisiqi will continue to improve services under Provincial Jurisdiction by:

- Providing more services in our own way
- Following community direction
- Integrating Dechen Ts'edilhtan (T̕silhqot̕'in Law) into everything we do.

After five years, the two jurisdiction streams will merge. We will practice full Jurisdiction using T̕silhqot̕'in law and policies.

STREAMS MERGE AS WE PRACTICE FULL JURISDICTION (YEAR 6)

EMERGING GOVERNANCE BODIES

During the first five years of jurisdiction, we will set up strong governance structures at the community and Nation level. This will make decision-making clear and accountable.

A board of community experts will govern the central Tsilhqot'in Organization and provide funding to communities

An independent panel to resolve disputes and make decisions, eventually replacing provincial courts

Communities will decide their own governance structures based on capacity and community direction

Respected Aunts and Uncles will provide advice based on Tsilhqot'in values and culture

NEXT STEPS

During the next phase of engagement, the Nidlin team will focus on:

- Building community understanding and support for our transition to full jurisdiction
- Gathering feedback about putting our new service model into action
- Discussing community and Nation-level governance structures

Stay tuned for upcoming engagement events in your community!
